Elks Chairman Logs 9,000 Visits to Ill

While others talk of total involvement and doing their thing, Jim Florentino has been totally involved in doing his thing for the past decade.

As chairman of the sick visitation committee of San Pedro Elks Lodge 966, he has logged 9,354 visits in five bulging record books and driven thousands of miles to community and veteran's hospitals, convalescent and private homes to call on ailing members and their families.

Florentino, a retired customs port investigator, took over the job when the incumbent chairman, Ben Grier, fell and broke his hip. "He was 80 and crippled with arthritis, yet he would hobble through miles of hospital corridors to visit the less fortunate. Bedridden, Grier's main concern was who would make his sick calls," Florentino reminisced, "I've been doing it ever since, although I resigned twice, once because of illness. Somehow the job always comes back to me."

His log books record the drama of life. Names become ailing brother Elks who got well or didn't, wives with new babies, sisters injured in auto accidents, parents old and senile. He makes a capsule report on each patient at weekly lodge meetings, often stressing that the Elks' blood bank requires donors or that certain patients should have more visitors.

Florentino and his wife and their two married daughters and families live in the Harbor area. An articulate, outgoing man with a warm smile, his hobbies are taking motion pictures and reading philosophy.

His bag is fraternity — helping his fellowman.

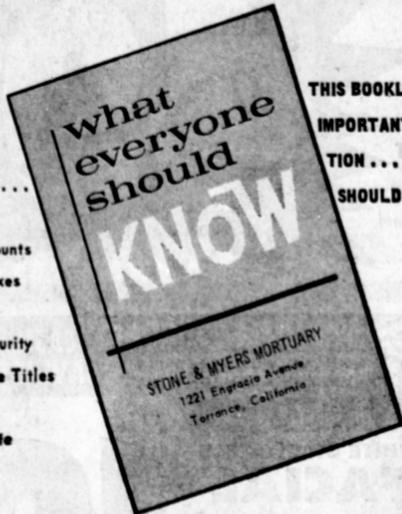

Weekend Workshop Planned

Chapel Theatre, 2222 W. Lomita Blvd., will present a musical comedy workshop Friday and Saturday. Marv Lester will direct the workshop.

Objective of the program, Lester said, is to train singers to act and to train actors to sing.

This weekend's production, "Showcase Presentations," will feature recitals by students of the workshop. The public is invited and tickets may be reserved by calling the Chapel Theatre box office.
